

Eucharistic Homily

Fourth Lord's Day of Advent

December 18, 2022

Some people make the mistake of thinking that God is so high and lofty that He's out of touch or out of reach or can't be bothered by our little problems. Other people make the mistake of thinking that God is just a good buddy we can call whenever we need a favor.

But the Incarnation of Christ shows us that both of these views are wrong. God is far higher and more glorious than we could ever imagine, but He is also closer and more involved in our lives than we could ever imagine.

We must learn to fear God in humility and awe, but we must also learn to run to Him for refuge, strength, and deliverance. So come to the Table of the King in reverent fear and holy awe to receive His blessings with a heart of gratitude and humility.
